

Highway 1 at Esperance is OK but often has a plenty of heavy traffic. Get off as soon as you can for a little adventure.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 1 of 28

Down to the coast at the first opportunity.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 2 of 28

Springdale Road is great and there isn't much traffic. Much better.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 3 of 28

Camping at quiet Munglinup Inlet.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 4 of 28

It's a limestone road: that's OK. It's not exactly dry: that ain't.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 5 of 28

The east side of the Fitzgerald River National Park is really attractive. Not too many come this road.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 6 of 28

Swan Lake down at Hamersley Inlet. Nice.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 7 of 28

Cutting through the heart of the Fitzgerald River National Park. No water out here.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 8 of 28

Down at Point Ann, FRNP.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 9 of 28

Leaving Point Ann on the way to Bremer Bay. West FRNP.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 10 of 28

Outta Bremer Bay.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 11 of 28

Stirling Range in SRNP.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 12 of 28

Track along the north boundary of Stirling Ranges NP. Says it's a 2WD road on one of my maps.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 13 of 28

Beware the dreaded Numbat.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 14 of 28

Wandering in the Porongarup National Park.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 15 of 28

Down at Little Beach, Two Peoples Bay, just out of Albany. That water looks great and it is that colour.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 16 of 28

Typical Albany: sunshowers.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 17 of 28

Near Denmark.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 18 of 28

Off on another back road, Chesapeake Road, on the way to Northcliffe.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 19 of 28

Cutting through Frankland River National Park on Nornalup Road. Real easy riding.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 20 of 28

Early morning fog at the Frankland River.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 21 of 28

Good riding on the back roads around Pemberton.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 22 of 28

Cape Leeuwin and Australia's tallest lighthouse.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 23 of 28

No tour of the SW is complete without a ride down the wonderful Boranup Road in Leeuwin Naturaliste NP.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 24 of 28

Yet more Boranup Road.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 25 of 28

It's an exciting little adventure to cruise one of the tracks in Leeuwin Naturaliste National Park.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 26 of 28

Yallingup gives a great view of surfers in action if the swell is cranking. It usually is.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 27 of 28

Last bit of off road for a while, the Coweramup Rail Trail.

South West Western Australia | cycletrailsAustralia.com.au | image 28 of 28